

From the desk of:
Roger S. Blumenthal, MD
Director, Johns Hopkins Ciccarone Center for the Prevention of Heart Disease

I'm pleased to invite you to the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine "Virtual Congress" Translating Science into Practice: Recent Advances Across the Spectrum of Cardiology Care, www.CardioCareLive.com. This live interactive 3-day meeting on cardiovascular disease provides an opportunity for you to stay current on medical therapies and procedures without travel, expenses, and time away from your practice and patients.

To attend, simply visit www.CardioCareLive.com and register.

This complimentary event, scheduled for May 11th to 13th from 2:00 PM to 10:00 PM EST, offers more than 15 sessions covering the latest therapies and procedures presented by 20+ of my esteemed colleagues, including:

"Medical Management of Atherosclerotic Vascular Disease: Clinical Update and Case Studies"

Peter Libby, MD, Chief of Cardiovascular Medicine, Brigham and Women's Hospital

"New Horizons in Pharmacologic Treatments for Acute Coronary Syndromes"

Christopher Cannon, MD, Brigham & Women's Hospital

"Current Controversies in Interventional Management for Acute Coronary Syndromes"

Gregg W. Stone, MD, Columbia University Medical Center

"Cardiovascular Disease and the Patient with Diabetes and Metabolic Syndrome"

Richard Nesto, MD, Lahey Clinic Medical Center

Nathan Wong, MD, University of California – Irvine

www.CardioCareLive.com features live streaming webcasts, panel discussions, Q&A sessions and case study presentations – garner instant answers from me and the other presenters from the convenience of your computer. All sessions will be available on-demand online after the live virtual congress concludes.

Please join me and thousands of our colleagues—from across the country and around the world—for the second annual edition of this highly successful virtual congress on cardiovascular disease. Confirm your attendance now – visit www.CardioCareLive.com.
